DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-2,4-10-15,19-24,26-34 and 36-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arnold et al 6,167,449 in view of Rosenberg et al., "SIP: Session Initiation Protocol", Internet Engineering Task Force, cited by applicant.

4. Regarding to claimed invention, Arnold teaches, the invention that gives an application an ability to search or browse for network services based on the type of service, rather than having to know the name or location of the service of underlying network communication protocol used by the service. The system includes a network look-up procedure that allows client applications to access SIP servers; including

Art Unit: 2142

Domain Name Service (DNS) and Lightweight Directory Access Protocol (LDAP), as well as Service Location Protocol (SLP), running on top of the Transport Control Protocol/Internet Protocol (TCP/IP). The system includes interface for receiving request for type of service and queries on of the SIP server, the service type includes DNS, FTP, AFP, Mail and etc. The system includes an interface, which is configured to enable client devices to select and request several types of application form SIP servers, from any receiving request, identifying type of request redirecting request from appropriate type of application from SIP servers, form any domain (DNS) or location of the servers (SLP). Even though, Arnold does not specifically discussed means and steps as claimed, but receiving request, identifying type of request redirecting request from appropriate type of service in accordance with the request are implicitly disclose in Arnold, see abstract, and col.3, lines 23-col.4, lines 1-25. Arnold teaches invention as disclosed but does not specifically disclose load-balancing mechanism for a given service and given stream of that service. Rosenberg et al teaches Session Initiation Protocol as an application-layer control protocol that can establish, modify and terminate multimedia sessions such as Internet telephony calls. Also, for locating prospective session participants, SIP relies on infrastructure of network host (called "proxy servers") to which user agents can send registrations, invitations to sessions and other requests. It would have been obvious to one of the ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to utilize the teaching of SIP protocol of Rosenberg et al because it will provide efficient load-balancing mechanism for a given service and given stream of that service.

5. Claims 3, 16-18, 25 and 35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arnold in view of Rosenberg as applied to claims directly above, and further in view of Ahuja et al. 6,175,869.

6. Ahuja et al teaches a technique for server allocation, which includes dispatch mechanisms for dispatching request to servers based on the servers load (col. 1, line 38-col.2, line 13; col. 2, lines 42-col. 3, line 20 and col. 4, line 64-col. 6, line 67). It would have been obvious to include such mechanisms of notion of mechanisms with Arnold in view of Rosenberg for redirecting clients request base of server work load in order to balance load to improving network service efficiency.
